

Name: _____

Date: _____

SUBJECT, PREDICATE, & COMPLEMENT: IDENTIFYING PREDICATE

Grammar Review #3

Directions: In the sentences below, first bracket off all prepositional phrases. Then, underline the complete predicate and circle the simple predicate.

REMEMBER: THE SIMPLE PREDICATE CAN NEVER, EVER, EVER BE IN A PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE.

1. Tilly and Liv shiver and quiver when they eat liver.
2. Mrs. Granberry delighted the winners of the spelling bee with prizes of large stalks of broccoli and cups of ranch dressing.
3. At half time in the crowded stadium, Kippy played an original version of "Over the Rainbow" with his armpit.
4. In a strange turn of events, Tye found a tiny fish eye in his French fries.
5. Where did you buy that lovely, invisible necktie? (Hint: Reword the question into a statement!)
6. Against his parents' will, Newton watches his b's and u's instead of his p's and q's.

Name: _____

Date: _____

SUBJECT, PREDICATE, & COMPLEMENT: IDENTIFYING PREDICATE

Grammar Review #3

Directions: In the sentences below, first bracket off all prepositional phrases. Then, underline the complete predicate and circle the simple predicate.

REMEMBER: THE SIMPLE PREDICATE CAN NEVER, EVER, EVER BE IN A PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE.

1. Tilly and Liv shiver and quiver when they eat liver.
2. Mrs. Granberry delighted the winners of the spelling bee with prizes of large stalks of broccoli and cups of ranch dressing.
3. At half time in the crowded stadium, Kippy played an original version of "Over the Rainbow" with his armpit.
4. In a strange turn of events, Tye found a tiny fish eye in his French fries.
5. Where did you buy that lovely, invisible necktie? (Hint: Reword the question into a statement!)
6. Against his parents' will, Newton watches his b's and u's instead of his p's and q's.